Something About Town Roads.

We have said nothing about our candidacy for the road commissionership for the past two weeks.

Those obliged to pass over our highways have had trouble enough of their own without reading about good roads in the paper. It is easy to talk about good roads but how are we to obtain them?

Our candidacy for the office receives a good support from non-residents. That pleases us. These people know something of the advantage of roads which are not heaps of sand and dust, or streaks of mud. Can we have such roads? Certainly. They will not come down from the clouds by simply wishing for them. We must build them and must pay for it.

We have had our say as to how they might be built. We have made a proposition to the voters of this town. It's for them to accept or reject it.

We want the roads. Can we have them?

Maybe, and we feel there is a better way to do it than by the piece-meal plan suggested. Will not some one enlighten us? We'll print. Space on this subject is yours by the asking.

Next week we shall print an article showing how it may be done and the land abutter pay a certain portion of the expense. We publish it for what it's worth and ask you to give it a careful reading.

In this road building and repairing it must be borne in mind that we have some eighty miles of roads to care for.

Those present were Dr. E. A. Sheehy, Lester Cowan, E. A. Gundy and J. M. Palmer. The table was appropriately decorated and hand painted souvenirs laid beside each plate and the four relayed themselves on the fat of the land and made speeches intermixed with song and all wished Mr. Palmer success and continued prosperity and happiness.

If people would only sign their names to letters or written articles of any kind, they would save themselves and others much trouble. The other morning the editor of the ADVERTISER found some advertising matter under the door. He has no idea who wants to do the advertising. The result is that as the affair is to happen before next week, it will then be too late.

Rev. C. A. Brooks and family returned from Portland, Tuesday evening, where they have been attending the Maine Conference. A very warm reception by the church people awaited them at the parsonage with many greetings of gladness for their return for another year. A local Peterboro, N. H. paper says: "A new song of unusual merit has been put upon the market. The words were written by Harold D. Carrow, the music by Verne M. Whitman. It is entitled, 'A Letter to Heaven,' and is very attractive, not only in appearance, but also in sentiment and musical quality." Also that: "One of the features of the vespers service to be held Easter Sunday at the Unitarian church will be the singing by the quartet of an anthem written by Prof. Verne M. Whitman. It is a stirring jubilate Deo in F." Mr. Whitman's musical friends in Norway will be pleased to see the new song. The anthem has been sung here we believe.

The petitions for the postoffice have been sent in. There were right round 500 names on the two petitions. Jesse P. Edwards, the present clerk at the postoffice, had some rising 300 who want him for postmaster and Chas. S. Akers, clerk at the Blue Store, the balance. If there is to be a vacancy, which many doubt, then the powers that will appoint some one. Capt. Moses P. Stiles, one present incumbent, expects to be continued under late department ruling. This undoubtedly will be so should the report of the inspector recently here be favorable to him. What that report was we know not but presume it to be favorable, hence it's very likely Moses will deal out the mail and be called upon to lick postage stamps for some time to come notwithstanding 500 good and true Republican patrons ask for some one else to fill his place. Democrats in this don't count.

An Easter Party.

Clara Louise Hathaway gave an Easter party to sixteen invited friends at her home on Pleasant street, Monday evening.

The house was beautifully decorated in colors appropriate to the season. The decorations in the reception room were purple and white. Whist tables were arranged about the room in an orderly manner. Instead of the rings generally used in the game dainty booklets with pencils attached were used for score cards.

A novel method of choosing partners was introduced. A large "chicken pie" was arranged on a table. The pie was a basket covered with crepe paper and inside were sixteen imitation chickens.

To each chicken was fastened a paper string, the end of which hung out over the basket and the whole was covered over with crepe paper, several chickens sitting on top. Eight of the strings were one color and eight another. Each chicken was lettered, thus having the same letter. The girls drew one color and the boys the other, and those getting the same letters were partners.

Punch and light refreshments were served at the tables and later ice cream and cake.

At a late hour the guests departed, having spent a most enjoyable evening. Those present were Pearl Cook, Myrtle Haskell, Rosamond Dunham, Mildred Bangs, Marion Crockett, Eva Smith, Winona Stearns, Bert Hatchings, Philip Haskell, Clarence Dunham, Albert Fogg, Roy Pratt, Roscoe Merrill, Benjamin and Henry Hosmer.

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and the backache. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was happy and free from the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

An Old-Time Sugaring Off.

Written for the Advertiser.

When I taste the maple syrup For the first time in the spring, Thoughts of childhood days sweep o'er me. Pleasant memories to bring. Days when life knew naught of sadness, Days when life was full of bliss, When each hour was full of sunshine, Joy was all, and sorrow a myth. Visions of a sainted mother, A father good and kind, Ever thinking of their children's pleasures, This was foremost in their mind. When this news we waited with joy, "I am going to sugar off to-day. You may ask the girls and boys." When we sent our invitations To our school friends far and wide, We were taught that to the unfortunate Our camp doors must open wide. That the children whose lives were barren, Have crossed our golden joys were few, They must be invited too. So we rushed our invitations, In a most informal way, Each child hastened off their duties, And the work for the day, Got our spoons and saucers ready, By the time our guests arrived, Vision of a bright April morning, To sugar woods we hied. Far away are crants so shining, Smoother and glassy, flax so strong, That no foot tracks were discovered, As we youngsters trudged along. Spots of the camp reached mid shouting, What a crowd of now grown people! Boys of boiling maple syrup, And the little youngsters cried, "In fancy, I see the brown mass surging, Threatening now to leap the side, But the hand that held the ladle, Held the spoon, and the high tide. We discarded our silver spoons now, Better far than spoons of gold, Is the little sugar camp, high tide. Dainty paddle made of wood. Now the scum, which from impurities Had been cleaned, was ready, so Each was ready with his paddle To secure his scum, pure as snow "Now our pans of snow get ready," Gentle father tells us all. Then we scamper to the snow drift, And the golden scum is ready. Then we turn the brown mass over, This ball so pure and glittering, As the snow, the golden candy. Fit we think for lord and king. As the April sun is setting, From the sugar camp we all come forth, Each one seizes his little paddle, As a souvenir of this sugaring off. Many of those dear old childhood friends, And the hand that held the ladle, Is now at rest, its work is o'er. Bryant's Pond, Me.

Ninety-Six Years Old.

Maine Woman Who Rode on Maine's First Railroad Train.

Mrs. Priscilla Wight Chaplin of Bridgton recently attained the age of 96. She observed the day quietly, receiving calls from neighbors, with whom she chatted entertainingly.

Mrs. Chaplin was born in Otisfield, April 7, 1810. She was the third in order of birth of the 11 children of Jonathan and Mercy Harmon Wight. Her father was a native of Wrentham, Mass., and came to Otisfield with his parents when only 11 months old. In 1845 she married the late Andrew Chaplin, son of John Chaplin, a Massachusetts soldier of the Revolution, who was one of the early settlers of Bridgton.

Upward of twenty years she has been a cripple, the result of a fall in which she broke her hip; but otherwise her health has continued surprisingly good. During each day she sits in her easy chair knitting, reading or entertaining visitors. She is noted for wit and eccentricities, as well as for her remarkable memory and knowledge of people and events of the olden time. She is quick at repartee. Socially she is companionable and charming.

Among her varied experiences was that of being a passenger on the first steam cars run in Maine, on the occasion of their trial trip from Portland to Saco. Aunt Priscilla has been a member of the Congregational church 63 years. Her Bible is her constant companion.

The only optician in this county who has ever personally attended an Optical School and has diploma for same.

Hills is recommended by nearly every first-class Physician in Oxford County, what more do you want?

If your eyes need treatment go to your regular Physician, IT'S SAFER than fooling with Quack Doctors and Fake Opticians.

NORWAY ADVERTISER, 1905, 11 years ago, says:—"Vivian W. Hills, our local optician, has been in Portland the greater part of the past few weeks, taking a post-graduate examination at the Eye and Ear Infirmary must necessarily be a benefit to Mr. Hills in his examination of the eye. Mr. Hills took his first course ten years ago in Chicago and ever since has been in vantage of all others. He also was the first in Oxford County to make a specialty of fitting the eye for all errors."

Hills' prices are the lowest. Why pay $5.00, $4.00 or $3.50 when you can get the very same at Hills for $2.50. Why pay $2.50, $2.00, when you can get the same at Hills for $1.00?

Don't understand us saying we are "the only one who can fit you—some 'travelling men,' 'spectacle dealers,' 'would-be opticians' and 'quack doctors' will fit you so you can see, but you will pay double the price that HILLS would ask you for the same. How do you know but a pair fitted by HILLS would be less strain on the eye? Try it, for why take chances? Don't fool with your eyes. Anyone can sell Glasses, WE FIT THEM.

Harking Back.

Thirty Years in Business.

On the twenty-ninth day of July, 1875, the writer rode into Norway with one of our well-known men on the street, Chas. Crosby, who at that time was in company with Mr. W. D. S. Millet, owning the stage line between this town and the R. R. station in South Paris. The old settlers will remember the old covered station in South Paris, a very impressive structure to one who came from the northern wilds of New Hampshire. It was at that date the largest station on the Grand Trunk outside of the cities.

Leaving South Paris for Norway, just as we entered the woods that at that time began near A. C. T. King's, the express team drove by, turning off to the left disappeared into the woods. Upon inquiry as to where they were going was told it was only another road to Norway. One of the boys who was on the team, who by the way has become one of our most successful merchants, informed me that they drove round this back way to leave a class of merchandise that has caused considerable trouble for all who have anything to do with it, especially those who try to profit by its sale.

The woods extended at that time from near Mr. King's in Paris to Peter Frost's next to Pine Grove cemetery. The old Lary house, the Lombard house in the place between King's and Alpine street, or Ramford road. I believe the Bonney house was put up there very soon after. On the left was the Lamrock house, Chas. Pike's and Mrs. Wisley's. On the right, Henry Howe's, Winslow's, the Beal flat-roofed house and the old Millet house on the corner. Coming up street, the old bakery store was running. Our famous tannery, covering acres of land and turning out acres of leather, at the time was one of the heavy industries of the State.

The next store on the right was C. N. Tubbs', who now with his son since grown to be a successful manufacturer of shoes, they owning and managing the Pine State Shoe Co. The next business place was the National Bank in what is now the Hayes Bakery, next E. W. Howe, who ran a general store, then Freehold Howe's Insurance Agency upstairs, post office down stairs in the same building occupied by Mr. Howe at present. Mr. Howe is with one exception the only one on the street that has made no change. Next came D. W. Beal's clothing store, Webb as he was known by all, was one of the most genial and kind men I have known in the writer's good fortune to meet. In the same block was Mrs. Rosanna Crockett, next came the Beal House, managed by Thomas Huston. On the corner now occupied by Beck's Bazaar was Crockett's Photo Gas. In the block was Horace Cole's jewelry store. Horace told the writer he had paid the Noyes family more for rent than was asked for the premises when he moved in. Next Cole's was the Haskell sisters, dress-makers. They have all gone to their reward, as fine quartette of good, beautiful girls as ever blessed a father and mother, and whose early death left them bereaved hearted. In the upper part of the Noyes block was Benj. Farrar, the left-handed barber who, when he was a boy, would not allow others to do so in his shop. Bobbitt Noyes had a book-binders in same building upstairs.

Crossing Deering street, A. Oscar Noyes had the large drug store where the Smith Shoe Store is now. The block's peanut and candy establishment with an annex for enabling the foolish to get rid of their surplus cash. Mr. J. O. Crooker's brick store remains unchanged in every way except modern plate glass windows. Mr. Crooker can be seen the same as ever, where he has been continually for forty two years, close by the old Cox store occupied by Lewis O'Brien, who would make you a suit that would fit "like the paper on the wall." The Elm House was then as now managed by Timothy Smith with the assistance of Capt. Whitmarsh, both of whom are still on earth, doing their best to entertain man and beast in the most home-like and comfortable way the writer has ever found. Next to Elm House was the old Whitman law office. This, with C. B. Cummings' furniture store, covers the business places on the north side of Main street. Beginning at end of Main street, south side, Eben Shackley had a hardware and general store, then Mix & Watson's tannery. Who of all the old people will forget Ceylon Watson, general undertaker for the whole town? If anyone was heard enquiring for Ceylon Watson, the first question was, who is he? Ceylon was always kind and always willing to help in time of trouble. His partner, Lee Mixer, another of the kind, honest, credulous men who believed all were as honest as himself, who disliked music so much that he would not go to meeting until the singing was over.

On the corner now occupied by the Norway ADVERTISER was J. Clark's shoe store. Beside this building on Bridge street was Charles Keith's marble shop. The next corner, across Bridge street, James Bennett had a meat shop. The Bartlett store was occupied by Brooks Bros. The Hathaway block contained Mrs. Dan Harmon's millinery store, J. T. Rowe's barber shop and S. C. Hatch's oyster saloon, and many a good stew and fry did Steve furnish for the hungry.

The old Clyde mill was empty and had been for several years. It was a sad looking piece of property. In the rear of the mill Gen. Cole runs a carding mill, and collected taxes between jobs. Capt. Whitmarsh's father had a small watch-maker's shop just below the mill near Whitcomb & Oxnard's general store, who used to upper part of this store for a manufactory of ready-made clothing, hiring lots of girls, besides having thousands of pairs of pants made outside. Down the street several blocks to the Dennison store, the site of the present Noyes Block.

Next the Dennison store, the Savings Bank then Cyrus Tucker's harness shop with Benson Hawkin's shoe store on the corner of Maine and Danforth streets. A. J. Rowe's drug store was the last business place till you got to the Falls, where Ephraim Brown had a small general store that he ran in connection with the Town Clerk's office.

B. F. Spinney & Co. were making shoes in that part of the old shop that fronts on Witherell Park, the ell being built that fall. Business changes moved more rapidly after the enlargement of the shoe factory, new people coming soon changed the quiet country village to a small manufacturing town. Houses were springing up everywhere. Our lamented Fidler Cummings was putting them up half-dozen at a time.

After a stay of a few months the writer left town till the next summer. During his absence the lower church burned, changes in business, death of leading men made it seem like a new town, and never seemed as it did on the fair summer day when he became a Norwegian.

Oxford County's Tragedies.

It is a singular coincidence, although it has nothing material to do with the alleged murder of Eugene Bryant at a lumber camp in Hartford, not East Sumner, that the shot gun which Wesley Chick owned and used to kill his aged uncle, David Varney—the Oxford county murder trial that has just finished in a life sentence for the murderer—is a 12-gauge Hopkins & Allen make and that the fatal shot that ended Eugene Bryant's life was also from a 12-gauge Hopkins & Allen gun of almost the same design. Bryant is the fourth Oxford county man to meet his death by a shot gun within the last nine months.

On Easter morning, 1905, Edward Hilton, crazed with jealousy, shot and killed Charles Young, tried to kill his wife and ended his own life with the shot gun. On December 6th, Wesley Chick murdered his aged uncle, David Varney, in the latter barn at Kezar Falls. Eugene Bryant is the fourth victim added to this gruesome list.

A box was addressed to J. W. Metcalf was seized at the same place on the same day containing 12 so-called quart bottles of whiskey, and the hearing is also set for the 30th. ## The Albany Basin.

One of the most marvelous spots in Maine is in the town of Albany about four miles from East Stoneham and two miles from the Four Corners. This wonderful feature in the picturesque part of the state is hid from the gaze of the traveler and unless he makes inquiries regarding the many interesting places of these parts he is sure to miss the extreme pleasure and satisfaction of witnessing the great works of ages. If he be, however, a close observer, as he passes the Four Corners and takes the road leading to Albany, he will, on going a short distance, come to a road turning to the left and will notice on a small stunted birch sign which reads thus: Albany Basins 2 miles. This road leads to the old Keelwood house, where the traveler finds opportunity to care for his team while he explores the basins of Maine.

An old logging road is used to complete the journey, taking the traveler within ten rods of the basins. This road is through thick woods of a deep valley, hemmed in by steep forest clad hills. It is perfectly level and the visitor experiences no difficulty in pursuing his course. On the contrary, he enjoys the cool forest that tempts him to linger in its shade rather than hasten to pass through it.

Here is a quiet secluded place, sheltered by the forest and surrounding hills, is a deep canyon cut into the solid rock. This cut has been made by the wearing waters of Kezar river that have flowed for ages over its stony bed. It is about one hundred and fifty feet deep and the sides are nearly perpendicular. To descend to the bottom is a difficult task and one that requires great care and surefootedness.

When one has descended the bottom of this chasm he finds that it consists of a series of immense basins smoothly cut and hollowed out of the solid rock. Three of these basins are fifty feet across and forty deep. Others are much diminished in size. These basins form deep pools in the river where the brook trout may be caught in large numbers.

Large boulders of curious shape and varying dimensions lie at the bottom of basins and the explorer finds much to interest him about them. Particularly worthy of mention is a huge rock lying in a place where the rock touches on either side. Just above this are the rapids, and, as the water descends it strikes at the bottom of this boulder. The water cascading from its confining quarters pass each side of the rock and have worn it to the exact shape of a snow plough. Nearly all the boulders that lie in the bottom of this chasm have small basins fashioned in them by the wearing away of the softer portions of the rock. Frequently they have curious shapes, such as the form of animals and expressive faces.

Many are the parties that visit this wonderful spot in the woods of Maine. Hayrack parties come to this place year after year from a distance of twenty-five miles. A proposal by any one of a community to get up a party and go to the Albany Basins is always met with enthusiasm and an early date for the trip is usually agreed upon.

The Traffic in Old Horses.

A stringent law for the protection of horses has just been passed by the Massachusetts legislature. This law makes it a crime to sell at public auction, or even to lead, ride or drive on a public way any horse which, on account of lameness or other cause, could not be worked without violating the law against cruelty to animals. An exception is made in the case of horses that are being taken to a hospital or other place for their "humane keeping or killing." One purpose of this law—which it is said the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals intends to enforce very strictly—is to prevent a certain class of New Englanders from buying lame horses in Boston and other cities and shipping them to interior places in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

In Loving Memory of Bertha Minard Bartlett.

Good-bye little girl, but we miss you sore
Since the sun beamed on her sweet face
And guided your feet with tender care
Up the radiant golden heavenly stair,
Up, and up, to thy home above,
Safe to the arms of thy mother's love.

Dear little girl, you were wondrous sweet,
You shone like the stars of little feet,
As a traveler thirsts in a desert land
We yearn for the clasp of thy little hand,
And smile from thy shy sweet beautiful eyes.
Do you think of us, baby, in Paradise?
The streets of Heaven must seem more fair,
Dear little girl, for we miss you sore,
Yet we know our darling will not forget
The hearts that cherished her, stricken sore,
Since the angels beckoned her thro' the door.

New Smelter Revolutionizes Mining

Ex-Mayor Ashley of New Bedford Heads
Big Boston Syndicate—Stock of
Maggie Murphy Copper Company
Has Risen from 25c to 60c Share.

Boston, April 6. Ex-Mayor Charles S. Ashley of New Bedford is the active head of a new syndicate just formed, for the purpose of exploiting a new method for smelting ore, which means a complete revolution in mining methods, says the Boston Post last Sunday. The new smelter will cost only $30,000, where today a plant to refine the same ore would cost $300,000. This smelter means every mine can do its own smelting and that properties heretofore not worked can be with low grade ore at a big profit.

Ex-Mayor Ashley is the president of the Maggie Murphy Copper Company, one of the largest copper properties in Wyoming. Those who bought stock at 25c have reaped a profit of 130 per cent, as the market price has gone to 60c, and will advance still higher before long. The remarkable story of how Ex-Mayor Ashley secured control of the Maggie Murphy mine, and the big copper strike, will be sent to anyone. Address Maggie Murphy Copper Co., 16 State St., Boston 15-18

Jesse Howe worked as a farm hand for Capt. Howe, who then owned that property. The elm was set in a corner of the barn yard. This was 90 or 100 years ago, hence it is fairly supposed this elm—which is the largest in this section of the State—is a little rising one hundred years old from the seed.

The spring term of Hebron Academy opens with about the normal attendance a few pupils having entered and some of the older ones dropped out. Prof. A. L. Laffiere of Norway is to be found again at his post as instructor in French and German. Mr. Laffiere has been in Hebron ever since his graduation from college five years ago, and at the end of the last school year he put in his resignation for the purpose of going into business on his own account. Another man, the late Prof. Kern, was secured to take his place, but at the beginning of the present year it was found that the modern language department was to be so large that it was impossible for one man to take entire charge of it so with some difficulty the trustees secured Mr. Laffiere, but for the fall term only. At the end of the fall term of school he left to go into business, but the death of Mr. Kern left the position of modern language teacher open once more, and, very fortunately, Mr. Laffiere was in a position to again take it this spring.

Letter to George Walker, Norway, Maine.

Dear Sir: The way to buy paint is to go by the name. There is a name never seen on shanty paint or weak paint or short-measure paint: Devoe.

There are a hundred different names in paint. Some are sham; some weak; some short-measure; and some all three. If there is another such paint as Devoe lead-and-zinc, we don't know it. There are a few fairly good paints; a few; only one Devoe. A gallon Devoe is worth a gallon-and-a-half of those few.

Mr. Aaron Higgins, of Plainfield, N. J. always used 15 gallons of mixed paint for his house. Last Spring he bought 15 gallons of Devoe and had 4 gallons left.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devoe & Co.
F. P. Stone sells our paint.

He Insisted on Paying the Lawyer.
A prominent Norway lawyer tells the following story:—
A gentleman recently came to my office and asked questions and sought advice in a business matter which was out of the usual line that comes to a lawyer's office. A few minutes were spent in a pleasant neighborly chat and it was suggested by the attorney that he was soon to go to Portland, and he would do the errand or business for him if he wished. It was so agreed and on his return from that city he reported what he did with was satisfactory, and the man wished to pay him, but as he had been to no expense and it was simply a neighborly kindness, there was no charge, and the man was told so.

The man insisted on paying and the lawyer said he had no bill and refused to accept money. A dollar was thrown onto the table and the man left the office.

A few days later at noon the attorney's wife asked why he had ordered a barrel of flour and showed some surprise that he didn't know they were not out of flour. The lawyer insisted that he had sent no flour to the house, and if a barrel of flour was through a mistake, "Now look here," said the lady of the house, "Mr. McCrellis' delivery man said this flour was paid for and he was told to leave it here, and there was no mistake about it."

It was as nice a barrel of flour as could be purchased in town.

Subsequent investigation showed that the flour was bought and sent to the house by the man who threw the dollar on the table and insisted on paying a fair equivalent for service rendered.

Likes Good Roads
And the Advertiser.
I am glad that you notified me that my subscription to your paper had run out, and that you did not stop the paper, as I should rather go without my breakfast for a week than to miss one copy. We stay at home as much as possible, and in what occurs weekly in our own neighborhood by counties than in the "Coal Strike," or "Ice Combine."

Ever since reading what you wrote on the road-making plan, I have felt like saying with "Warren" in the Comedian that he used to play in Boston Museum, "Them's my sentiments and I shakes hands on't."

I am nearing the three score years and ever since my childhood have rode more or less over the road that leads from Frost Corner (so called) to Norway village, and every year they are fixing that road. If they had built not more than two roads a year, and built right, they would now have a start for a lasting road.

The way most roads are cared for now is no improvement on the old "district surveyors." The road machine just goes over the roads every spring and scoops in what few rocks they managed to rake partly outside the wheel ruts the year before, and the bushes get nearer.

Now it is most time for the automobiles to be getting round; (the terror of all women—and a few men.) With the narrow roads one cannot see ahead far enough to even think what to do if the horse be frightened. While the cutting of bushes would be a great improvement it would not be all.

I will say here your plan of improving the looks of the highway along the lake is praiseworthy, and I will add my little mite to help the good cause along.

SOUTH PARIS.
Clerk of Courts, C. F. Whitman, was in Portland, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ryerson are moving into their house after having spent the winter away.

A new book typewriter was set up in the Register at Deeds office, Monday. Hereafter the records will be made with the typewriter.

A. D. Park attended an auction at Peru, last week, for Manley Hall. Mr. Hall has sold his farm and is to run the dormitory at Leavitt Institute.

Ernest L. Parlin, formerly a druggist at South Paris, but now at Wilton, finds business good in his new location, and is doing better than he expected to.

Fern Park, of Presque Isle, now studying stenography in Bangor, and Clinton Park, of Bates college, Lewiston, visited their cousin, A. D. Park, last week.

Frank Fogg, who has carried on his livery business at the hotel stable for his past year, is soon to move his business back into his stable near the station which has been vacant for some time. He is also repairing his tenement and will move his family soon.

Wm. Russell, of the firm of Maxim & Russell, has sold his interest in the business to Mr. Maxim and is about to move to Leeds, where he has other business. Mr. Russell will be missed very much by the people of this and adjoining towns. He is a capable and progressive business man and his friends are many.

There will be a ball for the benefit of Oxford base ball team at Robinson hall, Oxford, Friday evening, April 20, music Edwards and Jones; hall director G. H. Heslop. Grand march at 8 o'clock. Ice cream at intermission.

Easter Openings.
Friday and Saturday seemed especially designed for the Easter millinery openings after the lingering days of winter of the past week, but on Friday spring came with a rush.
Mrs. R. L. Powers' show window was artistically done in green and white, the back of the window being arch with "Easter Greeting." One looked through large white, smilax wound oval hoops on a fine millinery display. "Marie's" hat was white in high side effect of lace straw and maline, with bird of paradise feather, pink roses and maiden hair ferns. George Washington, jr., sailor of pyroxylin straw in Alice blue, with a blue bird and a mass of loops under the brim. Roses cut from ribbon, applied on quills, and also on the maline around the crown. Another hat had a chiffon embroidered crown and white plumes massed in the back under the brim.

What are the styles? Well, they are varied, perhaps a little more varied than last year.

The tendency in some of the styles seems to be toward more elaborations than last season, and the range of color is much greater than it was a year ago. As has been said they are a little more elaborate in trimming than the very tones of color demand that. That they are more artistic than heretofore is the first thing that impresses one. However, ribbons and feathers are much in vogue. The quill is more in evidence than heretofore, and is being used for the entire feeling and appearance of the hats.

The ostrich plume is used with artistic digression in many of the hats and these plumes come in a variety of delicate tints.

Some of the pearl gray hats look very rich and the effects produced in this stunning color are really remarkable.

There are some dreams that are trimmed in white and the very lightest of colors that are better adapted, however, a little later in the season.

The Dresden ribbons are being used quite extensively this year. There never was such a variety in extremely light "sailors" as are to be seen this year.

The three principal hats of the season are the flat crown sailor, George Washington, jr., sailor, John Jones, and the fascinating boat shape turbans, Fritz Schell.

A great many of the hats are trimmed in lavish masses of tiny blue flowers, while in others American Beauty roses are used. Some of the hats are made of leghorn, manilla and horsehair.

In untrimmed hats and trimmings the spring display includes everything under the sun that is used in millinery. There is a most comprehensive assortment of hats and the entire department takes on the appearance of a wondrous spring arbor, yet in everything there is such an assurance of correctness that not an inch of space is left to a superfluity.

A Peter Pan hat in the raspberry shade has been made with a wide brim and a look with its white wings and pearl ornaments. On another hat in gray and raspberry, five yards of maline was used in a plaited ruche around the crown. A cream colored Neapolitan hood was placed on the top of a black hat and nearly covering it. This trimmed the top with the exception of a modest looking black rosette on the side and a black quill. In the back a bow of light Dresden ribbon added style. A gray hat in the mushroom shape gave a quiet, restful effect with its tucked in shades of Dresden ribbon and gray poppies with cool green centers.

Narrow braided bands in bright colors or gilt look like belts but are expensive. They trim on very effectively. We stay at home as much as possible, and in what occurs weekly in our own neighborhood by counties than in the "Coal Strike," or "Ice Combine."

Mrs. Powers showed 103 trimmed hats, 175 trimmed ready-to-wear hats, a fine line of children's trimmed hats and bonnets and an endless variety of untrimmed hats. Mrs. Powers has her own hat store. She has for assistants, Mrs. V. W. Ellis, Norway's well-known milliner, Grace Goodwin, Evie Penley and Annie Moore.

Mrs. F. E. Drake's millinery parlors looked bright and beautiful and were looked to be rushing. She had 50 trimmed hats and quantities that were not trimmed. Mrs. Drake trims most of her hats from orders, and those she had trimmed gave an excellent idea of the prevailing styles.

There was a hat with a dark blue brim and light blue crown, dark blue ribbon ruche plaited round the crown, light blue roses showing through a dark blue plume and light blue ornament. A lovely gray with a chat band on brim, shaded ribbon rosettes, pink poodles, shooting off towards the back. A roll sailor in the popular mulberry shades, with the brim cut, allowing the long pearl buckles and trimmings to start below the brim on left side, and continue interrupted up through on the crown.

A tuscany braid had an embroidered square white crown, lace edged, that gave one a thought of a doiley. The brim was made of row upon row of lace, white feathers shooting back from the side, pinks and colored foliage. A Neapolitan light blue hood, with a black spangled brim, pink and blue flowers, bird of paradise.

Three hat frames combined to make one and the wire was wound with black maline, the hat covered with black lace, made about as airy a structure as we saw. It was trimmed with two black plumes going back from the center front, flowers bunched under the back brim. A lace and green hat, faced with beige Neapolitan plaque with roses in the back, formed a most striking, stylish affair. A horsehair of Nile green faced with white chiffon, green poppies on the top and under the brim, pink poppies. A very delicate hat, crown of heart plaited maline, mosses and little rosebud on edge of brim, a fancy band of pink and green and gilt. Another in different shades of dark heliotrope with quills across the back coming from roses.

Among some of the novelties are maline with rolled edge; rosettes made of foliage with small roses; cut ribbon rosettes with little pearl buckles in center; shaded blue hat, faced with beige Neapolitan plaque with roses in the back, formed a most striking, stylish affair. STOP, WOMAN!
AND CONSIDER THE ALL-
IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience covers a great many years.

Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of a doctor.

Physicians, if unnecessary, without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.
Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are read, and opened, and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

The Dr. of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely, any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me."

Addie Shattuck and Lizzie Foss. Miss Libby has a big display of local photo post cards, a hundred or more different views in this vicinity. One of the novel sets of post cards, six in all, is a pen and ink sketch of scenes at Lake Umbagog illustrating the poem "Lake Umbagog" by Mrs. Elliott Smith.

On each of the post cards is a stanza of the poem written in Old English by Miss Libby and the sketches are also done by her. Some of her most striking photo work is done on rough paper in the sepia shades. Then there are the photo squares, the post cards, and several small oil paintings that are finely done.

Miss Shattuck's Easter cards in water colors are sweet, especially the sunbonnet children, not to mention the chickens. She has water colored panels and framed pictures. Some of them are local scenes.

We must not forget the passepartout pictures that are just now "the craze." Miss Libby has the material for making these including the gilt binding. The framelets are something new. A hand carved frame, touched with pyrography,

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant condition is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar packages. You may have a sample bottle free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers everywhere. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Fell Through Ice Into River.
Dr. Packard with his team, while crossing the river on the ice, near Willet's mill, had the misfortune of breaking through. When the doctor saw the horse going down, he jumped from the carriage and catching the horse's bridle held him up until assistance came. The first to arrive on the scene was Mrs. Lucy Curtis, bringing a rope, soon followed by Al. Talbot. In a few minutes they had the horse on dry land and ready for home, but if a stranger had happened along he would have thought the doctor had been trying his horse's speed.

Consumption is a Germ Disease. How can it Start With a Cold?

This is a reasonable question and one that must arise to the mind of almost everyone when the claim is made that consumption starts with a cold. The cold simply prepares the system for the reception and development of germs of that disease, that would not otherwise have found lodgement. It is the same with diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles. They are most likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. That is why a cold should never be neglected. The longer it hangs on the greater the danger. As a quick cure for colds Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be relied upon. Its remarkable cures have won for it a world wide reputation and an immense sale. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Noyes Drug Store, Norway, and Shurtleiff's, South and West Paris. 15-19

Norway Churches, Their Founders and Pastors.

By C. F. Whitman.
No. 3.

Just a century ago the present year, a few members of the Baptist church on Paris Hill, who resided in Norway, took their dismissal to form a society here. The number at first was ten but during the year the membership was increased to seventeen. The first deacon was William Parsons, who had come here from New Gloucester and settled on Pike's Hill. His mother was Sarah Rust, a sister to Henry Rust, the proprietor of Rustfield, and his wife was Abigail Millett, daughter of Captain John Millett of Gloucester, Mass., who was accidentally killed on board his ship in the West Indies. Three of his sons, John, Solomon and Nathaniel, settled in Norway. The society may be said to owe its existence in the town to-day largely to the Millett and Parsons families. Rufus Bartlett was the first clerk of the society, a position he held for many years. He was succeeded by Asa Thayer, Jr., born in Paris the very year the society was organized in Norway, and who moved here about 1834. Mr. Thayer was a trader in the village for many years, deputy sheriff, and postmaster under President James K. Polk from 1845 to 1849. He went West and died in Kansas in 1854. Deacon William Parsons had three sons who served in the Legislature, two as senators. His son, William junior, rose to the rank of general in the militia.

One of the strong members of the society was Capt. John Rust, a son of the proprietor of Rustfield. His father having died in 1812, he came to Norway and settled about 1814, and lived in a house on the corner of Main and Pleasant streets, in what has since been known as the Granville L. Reed place. His brother Joseph's family lived in a house connected with his on the same lot. He died here May 20, 1834, aged 72.

William Cox from Plymouth, N. H., came here and engaged in trade. His place of business was in or near that where Wm. C. Leavitt's hardware store is now located. His wife was Elizabeth Phillips of Chatham, N. H. Mr. Cox was one of the founders of the Baptist church in Norway and for many years one of its strong pillars. He and his good wife had a family of fifteen children, twelve of whom lived to grow up and have families of their own. His son William was a zealous church member and a lay delegate. He was a farmer residing near North Norway, where he lived to be past 80 years of age.

One at least of the early church members of the Baptist society of Norway was a Revolutionary soldier. Ephraim Barrows came here from Hebron and settled at Steep Falls about 1820, near his son Benjamin, who was running a mill there. Ephraim Barrows was a Massachusetts soldier in the contest for American Independence, who after the war settled in Hebron. He died in Norway in 1888, aged 77, and his remains were interred in Rustfield cemetery.

Nathan Millett born in 1800, a son of Col. John Millett, during a long and useful life resided on a farm in the Milllet neighborhood. He early took an interest in religious matters and joined the Baptist church, in the tenets of which he brought up his family. His son, Nathan W. Millett, followed in the footsteps of his father, and chiefly through his efforts a lot on Cottage street in the village was purchased and a pretty church erected on it in 1880, which is the present home of the society.

This, however, is the second church the society has owned. Up to 1820 it had no house of worship and meetings were held in schoolhouses and private residences. Capt. John Rust before mentioned, who inherited from his father at the mill at the head of the village with considerable land, gave the society a lot near where the upper primary schoolhouse now stands, and the old Universalist church, which it was wished to replace with a better structure, but which the Baptists considered good enough for them with some repairing, was purchased and moved across the street.

The first pastor of the society was Rev. John Waggs, who was ordained in October, 1830. His ministry continued for three years "with little success," as the account of his pastorate labors states, yet the church membership increased during that period to twenty-five. Then for eighteen years the society was without a settled minister. During that time the membership had increased to thirty-two. The wonder is that it increased at all. That it did so, speaks eloquently of the devotion, faith and worthiness of the members of the little society.

In 1837 Rev. John Haines was settled in the pastorate of the church. He had been successful in building up other societies and this was probably the reason why he was sent here to do a similar work. The membership increased at once one-third but here it stopped. It was during the first years of Mr. Haines' stay here that a house for worship was procured as already related. In 1836 he resigned his pastorate and went away. He was succeeded by Rev. Reuben Milner, a native of England. He came here from Kennebunkport. Mr. Milner was one of the best pastors the society ever had. In 1840 there was quite a revival and eight persons joined the church, making the total membership about 60—the largest in the history of the society. Mr. Milner died here in 1850. His widow survived him many years and brought up two of her granddaughters, Lena and Effie Milner. The former died many years ago. The latter is the wife of Charles S. Akers of this village.

The membership of the society from 1845 gradually decreased till in 1884, it was reported as only nine. The church during this period was sold and converted into a tannery. Of late years it has been used as a stable. It is one of the oldest structures in the village. Since the new church edifice was built the society has prospered. Rev. Edward S. Cotton is its present pastor, having been settled here since 1901. Mr. Cotton and his good wife have labored zealously and well in the interests of the church. He is an able preacher, a learned Biblical scholar and withal an excellent citizen. He not only has the confidence and love of his people, but the respect of all classes in the community. Temperance and all movements calculated to benefit the people have his hearty support. In these and in such works where they can labor together, his brother clergymen find in Mr. Cotton a tower of strength. His wife as an interested in all good works as he is and is as intellectual. In fact in this respect she is regarded as one of the very first ladies in the town. She often leads in the prayer and praise services and her voice is always heard in the meetings of the W. C. T. U. and federation assemblies, and her earnest words touch the hearts of all who hear her. The Baptist church
